“León De Perú”: Vatican Media released a documentary on Prevost's years of mission Just over a month into the pontificate of Leo XIV, Vatican Media has released a film León de Perú (Leo of Peru). The film can be viewed on the VaticanNews YouTube channel and retraces the missionary work of Robert Francis Prevost in Peru.

Bishop of Kharkiv: We are a Church under bombs that loves and defies death

Bishop Pavlo Honcharuk of Kharkiv-Zaporizhzhia, who met Pope Leo XIV at the recent General Audience, says he will bring the Pope's blessing to his suffering country, and recounts "a devastated city, where bombings strike even playgrounds, deepening civilians' fear and soldiers' pain," but in which, "sisters and priests remain, despite everything."

"Entire villages and towns," he laments, "have been wiped out. Even our Kharkiv is heavily damaged, though local authorities are doing all they can to clean up after the attacks. After every explosion, hundreds of homes are left without windows. If that happens during the cold season, homes become uninhabitable. Many have been displaced. People have lost everything."

This river of human suffering, this flood of terrible stories, does not stop; rather, it grows, the bishop continues. "Playgrounds where children gather, factories, farms - everything is being destroyed," Bishop Honcharuk says. The bishop notes that soldiers often come to talk with priests. Alongside the physical strain and grief for fallen comrades, they carry another heavy burden: a wounded humanity, a wounded soul - because they have been forced to take up arms. "Ukrainian soldiers defend their homeland," he says, noting, "Out of love for their families and their country, they are forced to do what they would never choose to do - to take another life."

The Bishop of Kharkiv also highlighted the ongoing need for humanitarian aid, which has significantly decreased.
